

This volume gathers together all of Betjemans Church poems, as well as some new poems and others which had previously been out of print. John Betjeman has a stimulating way of enlarging any specific scene, not only into his own personal significances, but into those of us all, and never more so than in his Anglican explorations. In these poems we are shown, with his loving eye for detail and the human element and with his affectionate humour, how inside the confines of a church conjure up a whole parish.
