

Before you book...read the book! Jewish weddings, particularly traditional weddings, have a flavor all their own. They also present their own unique situations; in addition to the photographer, band, florist etc., there's the Chasans Tish, Badecking, Chupah, Yichud Room and Sheva Brachot to contend with. Although the cost in a fashionable synagogue can easily escalate into tens of thousands of dollars, by no means does this guarantee a perfect affair. Never Have Red Wine Under the Chupah is a book of great tips, hints and ideas that relate to every aspect of the wedding. It brings together the expertise of many professionals in the field, along with countless stories from brides, grooms and their parents expressing what they would do differently if they could do it over. Every page packs the powerful punch of a great idea which will leave the reader thinking over and over, Yeah, I've got to remember that!
