

Henry James was an American-born writer who was the son of a clergyman. James spent much of his early life travelling Europe and was tutored in cities such as Geneva, London and Paris. James™ even attended Harvard Law School but found that he preferred writing to practicing law. James was a well known contributor to literary criticism and literary realism. It was James™ belief that writers should have absolute freedom in portraying their ideas of the world and that writings must be realistic and portray things in a way that the readers can relate to. James™ would eventually settle in London and became a citizen in 1915. In the last year of his life, James was given the Order of Merit, a prestigious award for his distinguished work in literature. Some of James™ best known novels include The American, Daisy Miller, and The Portrait of a Lady.
