

The lives of friends Chase Stewart, Samantha Stewart and Nathan Clevinger change forever when Samantha Stewart marries plantation owner, Grady Reynolds and leaves her life in Washington, D. C. to travel to his plantation in South Carolina. The 1859 move is ill-timed as the Civil War is brewing on the horizon. Grady struggles with a smart and opinionated young wife while Samantha struggles with their differences and plantation life. Chase Stewart, Samantha's brother, is commissioned by his father to skirt both union and confederate lines to bring Samantha back to their ailing mother. A disillusioned Nathan Clevinger, friend and potential suitor for Samantha, joins union forces and deals with the horrors of war. The childhood connection the three have gives them insight and courage as each face their individual struggles. Is it enough to bring them back together in this time of turmoil? Follow the adventures of the three friends as Chase makes the treacherous trip, as Samantha learns to carve out her own life in the south and as Nathan Clevinger deals with the horrors of war.
